ONE STEP, THEN ANOTHER

Walk the coast.

The path changes with the headland. Pines give way to bare stone; a narrow turn opens onto a wide blue horizon.

Start with a short walk and let the day unfold. Pause in the shade, watch the water and leave time for the return.

Stay a little longer.

Arrive without a checklist. Follow a lane toward the harbor, stop for coffee and watch the boats come and go. Small towns reveal themselves through ordinary routines rather than one perfect viewpoint.

The afternoon belongs to the shaded squares and quiet back streets. Browse a market, ask about the local kitchen and choose a place to sit. A familiar corner can become the part of a trip you remember most.

OFF THE MAIN ROAD

Take the scenic route.

The best part of a day can be the space between plans.

Less rushing. More remembering.

01 Settle into the coast

Explore the harbor, take a gentle walk and leave the afternoon open.

02 Follow the headland

Choose a locally recommended trail, then return for a long lunch.

03 Find a quiet corner

Visit a nearby village or cove before a slow journey home.
